Kingston Shivers, Foot of Snow Is Week-End Forecast

Blizzard, Heavy Gales Expected to Arrive by Tonight in This Area

BY JACK BELL

Kingston and vicinity shivered this morning as the mercury went away below zero, and according to forecasts, a lot of good old fashioned winter weather is in store for the week-end.

The city hall thermometer registered 10 below zero at daybreak and in outlying rural sections temperatures as low as 25 were reported.

Thermometers in upstate cities showed: Buffalo 27, Glens Falls 19, Binghamton and Elmira 10 and Rochester 2 below. Syracuse was the warmest, two above.

A special bulletin said the storm "attended by widespread drifting snow is moving into the New York area from West Virginia and Georgia" and would hit the area early in the morning.

The new storm warning revised earlier forecasts of six to 10 inches of snow upward to 10 to 15 inches for the Metropolitan area. The storm follows a cold wave which early today set a new low for the winter of five degrees in the city. Three deaths were attributed partly to exposure during the night.

Roaring northwest winds expected to reach gale force will carry snow of 12 inches or more to the New England states late today and tomorrow, the Weather Bureau forecast from Boston said. It added that the cold, which reached 26 below at several points, will moderate only slightly during the storm and then dip possibly lower.

A special bulletin from the New York Weather Bureau said New Jersey and southeastern New York could expect a snowfall ranging from six to 10 inches in the wake of the winter's lowest recorded temperatures.

New York City's previous low of 22 was eclipsed by a reading of 23 below today.

"Moderate to heavy snow" was forecast through Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia and the western Carolinas and "steat mixed with snow" for the eastern Carolinas and southeast Virginia.

Newkirk Agrees to Withdraw Charges As Harder Announces Fire Board Will Certify Pay Roll on Budget Figures

Bradley Says A-Bomb Keeping Reds Checked

Dallas, Jan. 24 (AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley, the next army chief of staff, said here that, "if Russia had the atomic bomb I don't believe they would hesitate to use it on us."

In an interview last night, he also said, "I don't think she could—or would—fight now if she could help it."

There is danger of a blunder causing war because "Russia has taken such an aggressive stand in pushing around other nations," he declared.

Porter Predicts Wage, Price, Credit, Meat Controls as Part Of European Recovery Plan

Western Bloc of Nations Is Seen By Russian Press

Reactions to Speeches of Bevin, Churchill Cautious, Though Approving

BY EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—Paul Porter, former price control administrator, predicted today this country will be forced to control wages, prices, credit, meat and essential materials as part of the European recovery program.

He said the price is worth paying because if the Marshall Plan is dropped "we forsake the free people of Europe and renounce Europe to Soviet Communism or to the throes of civil war."

The British dollar outlays to get western Europe back on its feet, Porter said, will "aggravate a situation already bad as far as inflation in the United States is concerned."

He declared new government controls are the only way to forestall an economic collapse "on which the Soviets are basing their expectations and all their hopes."

Porter, a former special presidential ambassador to Greece, said that if a civil war of the kind now going on should break out in one of the larger western European nations "it would point the way almost immediately to world conflagration."

The witness appeared on behalf of Americans for Democratic Action, which he identified in the prepared statement as the "National Liberal Political Organization."

In advance of the hearing Senator George (D-Ga.) endorsed a plan to remove control from the State Department.

"I have come to the very definite conclusion that final authority should be in an independent agency," he told a reporter. "Our contributions and expenditures must rest on the solid judgment of an experienced administrator or board."

George is a veteran member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and his opinions usually carry weight with the southern Democrats.

The Georgian's stand goes against the specific recommendation of Secretary of State Marshall, who asked for a separate administrator subject to State Department control and supervision.

But it places George in agreement with the views of Senators Vandenberg (R-Mich.), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and Taft (R-Ohio), chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee.

Vandenberg called another committee meeting today to hear half a dozen more witnesses on the European recovery plan, including Paul Porter, former special ambassador to Greece.

George said testimony to date has convinced him that there is no limit at all upon the billions that must be supplied to the 16 western European nations unless there is "independent and sensible control over spending of our taxpayers' money."

Taft contended in a radio speech last night that the recovery plan is a "complete waste of money."

White, who heads the New York area of the housing agency, informed the mayor of his decision to be here in a letter received Friday afternoon. The letter was in reply to an invitation extended to him by Mayor Newkirk.

Also present at the meeting on February 4 will be Herman T. Stiehman, state commissioner of housing, who informed the mayor last Wednesday that he would attend and speak on the various phases of public housing. It is understood that both men will answer questions put to them by the public, who are invited to attend the meeting, which will be held in the municipal auditorium.

Highland Man Is Found Dead in Bed by Troopers

John I. Relyea Victim of Heart Attack; Funeral Will Be Held Sunday

BY JACK BELL

Highland, Jan. 24—John I. Relyea, 53, who retired as an inspector for DeLaval Separator Company, Poughkeepsie, last November, was found dead in bed Friday afternoon.

Dr. Carl F. Meekins, who had been treating him for some time, reported to Coroner Jesse McHugh of Wallkill that death was caused by a heart attack.

Mr. Relyea was found by State Police. They entered the house at request of neighbors who reported that they hadn't seen Mr. Relyea for several days and thought that he might be ill.

Mrs. Relyea with their youngest son was away from home on a visit to two other sons in Savannah, Ga.

A son of Frank and the late Jennie Love Relyea, Mr. Relyea is survived by his wife, formerly Mildred Barley; four sons, John and Kenneth Relyea of Savannah, Ga.; Robert, a student at Ithaca College; and Wilfred, a grade school pupil; two daughters, Mrs. Gordon Busch and Miss Virginia Relyea of Highland; four grandchildren; three brothers, Frank Relyea of Highland, Chester of Poughkeepsie, and George Relyea of Rochester; three sisters, Mrs. Howard Hegeman of Oles, Mrs. B. Whitmore of New Paltz and Mrs. George Fowley of Middletown.

Mr. Relyea was a member of Lloyd Post, American Legion. His funeral will be held from the Carpenter Funeral Home, Highland, at 2 p. m. with the Rev. Oscar Jelsma, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in charge of religious services. The Legion will conduct its ritual after the church rites. Burial will be in Highland cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home this evening between 7 and 9 o'clock.

The mayor adjourned the hearing until Monday at 7 p. m. If the pay roll is certified by that time, Mayor Newkirk said, the charges would be dropped.

The pay roll to be certified will be based on the wage rates received by the firemen in 1947, plus the cost-of-living bonus and whatever increments would be due the men, according to the mayor. According to the stipulation, City Treasurer Oscar A. Goodsell must honor the pay roll.

A second pay roll will also be certified by the board, based upon the difference between the first pay roll and the pay as set by the fire board in December. This, according to the stipulation, need not be honored by the city treasurer, but may remain unpaid, pending the results of the action brought against the city by the firemen's association. This suit will be heard before Supreme Court Justice Francis Bergan in special term in Kingston on February 6.

The charge arose when State Troopers seized trucks which were loaded with 67 tons of cyclonite, while en route from the Seneca Ordnance Depot at Romulus, N. Y., to Asbury Park, N. J., on January 9.

Reports Boy Injured
Myron Oppenheimer, 153 Henry street, a taxi driver for Perry's Taxi Company, reported to police that about 5 p. m. Friday, he was driving on Delaware avenue, a boy, Samuel Perry, 6, came out of Cordis street and ran into the side of the car. Oppenheimer said he took the boy to Kingston Hospital, where he was treated for a cut near his eye.

A.W.O.L. Charged
Edward A. Veach, of Onkes, town of Lloyd, was arrested at Poughkeepsie Friday by Deputy Sheriff William Frost on a charge of being A.W.O.L. from New Cumberland, Pa., since January 5. He was brought to jail and held to await Army officers from Stewart Field.

Cigarettes Blamed For Upstate Fires
(By The Associated Press)

Fires attributed to cigarettes damaged an Oswego, N. Y., store and a Syracuse, N. Y., department house last night.

Kline Brothers Department Store at Oswego was open for business when flames shot upward through the partitions of the two-story structure.

Customers and employees fled out into the sub-zero cold and no one was injured.

Fire Chief Monte Lass said the fire began with a lighted cigarette laid down by a customer in the suit department.

A cigarette dropped into a chair by a sleepy smoker started the blaze which temporarily routed three Syracuse families, district Chief Ernest Goebel recalled. There was no estimate of damage. Manager Charles G. Goldstein of the Oswego store said the loss there would total "several thousand dollars."

WHOOPING COUGH

Neglected Sniffles Can Breed Tragedy!

Never say, "It's only a cold!" For a slight case of sniffles, if neglected, may develop into a roaring case of pneumonia, flu, whooping cough or even diphtheria.

This isn't meant as a scare, but just a straight-from-the-shoulder truth for you mothers to think about when you're on the verge of sending Junior out to play, even though his nose is running and his eyes are glazed.

Rest in bed is an essential part of treating colds in children. If keeping an active child in bed is hard, at least keep him in the house, dressed in warm coveralls and see that he is protected from drafts.

If his head is stuffed up, it may help him to breathe steamy air. Do this by sitting him in the bathroom with the hot water running. Breathing this steamy air for 10 or 15 minutes—3 or 4 times a day—will make him more comfortable.

Here, especially, be careful of drafts! Your child's health is all-important. Learn to recognize symptoms and know what to do when they appear. See our Reader Service booklet No. 203. Complete care and training of children.

Send 25 cents (coin) for "Baby Care" to Kingston Daily Freeman, Reader Service, 243 West 17th St., New York 11, N. Y. Print name, address with zone, booklet title and No. 203.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

MATTER OF AFFECTION

I am especially glad to answer this letter: "I have taught my young children to call my friends 'uncle' and 'aunt' and have just made the startling discovery that my husband's sisters are resenting this. Two of my oldest friends are not only as near to me as real relatives could be but just as near to our children as any real aunt and uncle. I can't bear to push them away and have them called 'Mr.' and 'Mrs.'"

I agree with you. Those whom you truly love can be given, with every right as well as propriety, the title of "aunt" and "uncle." This would be in bad taste and would be resented justly by real relatives only if these titles were used when no special affection existed.

Smoothness of First Importance

Dear Mrs. Post: When dishes are passed from one to the other around the table and not presented by a waitress, does the gentleman offer the dish to the lady sitting beyond him before helping himself or does he help himself and then pass the dish to her?

Answer: He should help himself first and then pass it on to her.

Otherwise, it would hinder the service.

Personal Appraisal of Right

Dear Mrs. Post: What can be done if all of one's friends like to play for stakes whenever they play a game of any kind? I don't play for money because I was brought up not to play games for money. It isn't a question of the sums involved, because the sums are slight and not beyond what I could afford easily.

Answer: This is a question of your own conscience which no one can determine for you.

Congratulations End Ceremony

Dear Mrs. Post: At a wedding at home, after the marriage service is over, does the groom kiss the bride first and then the clergyman congratulate them or does the clergyman congratulate them first?

Answer: The clergyman usually congratulates them as though the words were the ending of the ceremony. And then the groom kisses the bride.

How to address an envelope and sign a letter as well as the choice of writing materials, is essential in the etiquette of letter writing. Mrs. Post's booklet, No. 502, will be very helpful. To obtain a copy send 10 cents (coin preferred) and a 3-cent stamp to her, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 93, Station C, New York 19, N. Y. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail.

Reports Big Deficit

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—The Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc., seeking a temporary increase in rates, told the Public Service Commission yesterday that its 1947 operating income showed a $1,895,722 deficit in gas sales. The testimony was given by Charles E. Elia, company comptroller, at a hearing on the company's petition for a rate increase that would bring revenue estimated at $8,239,700 in excess of its gas sales last year.

But He Got There!

Duquoin, Ill., Jan. 24—Dr. G. H. Guttridge got a hurry-up call from the hospital and rushed to the garage to get his automobile. After he backed his car out of the garage the gearshift got stuck. Dr. Guttridge drove the six blocks to the hospital—backwards.

The Accent On Ankles

Dark and fragile nylons put the accent on ankles with lace clocks, above; black, slimming heel, below.

New York (NEA)—What stockings lack in visibility below plunging hemlines, they make up for in bold colors and fancy details. To make the brief show of legs more of an eye-fall, Paris' lace clocks are etched again in dark glamorous sheers. This time lace loveliness is traced in 20-denier nylons. Ankles sheathed in new dusky stocking shades are made to look more fragile by heel-reinforcing prints that go high, wide and fancy. The fanciest are pointed.

Playwright Stricken

Philadelphia, Jan. 24 (AP)—Colin Clements, 53-year-old playwright who wrote "Harriet" and "Strange Bedfellows" was reported in critical condition today at Jewish Hospital. His wife, Florence Ryerson, said he is suffering from a heart ailment. Clements was stricken the night before "Strange Bedfellows" opened here December 27—and has never seen the play. The play is currently showing in New York.

Inc., of New York City for $275,000, has been approved, the War Assets Administration said yesterday. The plant originally cost $1,028,800. The agency said the company will spend not less than $250,000 in improvements.

New-Looking at '48: Hip Upholstery Gets a Restraining Touch, But Shoulders Flare Wide as Eagles' Wings

Spring forecast for fashions modifies the "new look." Fullness in the dashing plaid woolen "troubadour" cape, center, designed by Philip Mangone, is limited to circular flares inset at sides. Shoulder-built-up slope of this cape's shoulder, New York, (NEA)—The shape of things to come in 1948 is a modified "new look."

Skirts are still long, but many shown in early previews are 13 inches from the floor. The silhouette still takes shape around the wee-waisted look, but there is apt to be less hip padding or crinoline upholstery to accentuate its size. Drapery is used with more restraint. Skirts in the

New York (NEA)—The lady in tiers will be a fashionably dressed woman this spring. Many high-styled collections feature dresses flounced out with tiers of graduated tiers. These are posed over slender skirts to create a dress silhouette which has new fullness but not enough of it to uphoister a figure. The tiered dress has so captured the fancy of designers that they've allotted 1948's favored prints to this fashion. One of the most unusual prints in designer Jo Cope-

NEW FAME FOR KIPLING

Rudyard Kipling, dead only 11 years, has such a following that a Kipling Society has been formed, and has started publication of a quarterly magazine, the Kipling Journal, devoted to "bibliographical material, uncollected items and comment on Kiplingiana."

The fame of this strange English genius rests largely on his work about India where he was born, but where he spent only a few years of his adult life. He would marvel at the changes that have come in the last few years to that land that he viewed as so unquestionably a part of the British Empire.

Kipling has been called a man's writer. The subject of much of his work—except his books for children—was of army and navy life, the sea and the jungle.

Some of his early work seems not of great value now, but a few of his greater works, Kim, for instance, and The Light That Failed, some of the short stories, such as Without Benefit of Clergy and William the Conqueror are among the jewels of English Literature. Some of his poems are mere jingles, but a few—the Recessional, for instance, the one beginning "Who hath desired the Sea"—and The American Spirit speaks are keen expositions of human life and history. The Explorer and The Feet of Th Young Men will long be loved.

Kipling, doubtless, would be highly amused by the labors of the Kipling Society, but any move which may interest more people in his work has some value.

As for those British coin hoarders now charged with "endangering business life," we always thought their funny money would come to some bad end.

CANADIAN OPEN DOOR

Canada's flexible immigration regulations are now adjusted to their widest capacity. The government policy favors the admission of outsiders as a means of population growth.

Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King, in speaking on the subject last year, told parliament that without new admissions, Canada's population would increase too slowly. Preference is being given to people from the British Isles, but any white British subject or American citizen may enter if his health is good and he is supplied with enough money to tide him over a possible jobless period.

Canada, with its great areas suitable for farming, with its modern cities, its beautiful forests, lakes and streams, offers many advantages to the incoming hordes who are for the most part accustomed to life on a more restricted scale. In Canada, they can spread out, and the possibilities for their future are limited only by their energy and ambition.

GRADE CROSSING MENACE

In a farming community of northwestern Ohio, near the Michigan-Indiana lines, ten children were killed under the wheels of a fast passenger train. They were in a tractor-drawn bob sled on a snowy Sunday afternoon. The driver, a farmer, taking his own and neighbor's children for a bit of innocent fun, drove over an unprotected grade crossing in the path of the locomotive.

The tragedy again calls attention to the need for eliminating highway-level railroad tracks. Such a project would be a vast and expensive undertaking. But is not human life precious? And when did Americans stop at undertakings because of cost?

At the very least, some protection should be placed at every crossing, including those over little-traveled roads. The crossing where the sled full of children met death, had no gates, lights or warning devices of any kind.

BEAUTY IN POLITICS

A new kind of mayoralty candidate appears in Wisconsin. A former Folies beauty, Mrs. Ruth Foster Froemming has filed candidacy papers for the office of Milwaukee's chief executive. She admits being 50. In 1922 she was rated the state's most beautiful girl. According to her campaign pictures, the audiences who turn out to hear

ATHEISM BY LAW

Dr. Nathan Schachner has written, for the current issue of the American Jewish Year Book, a learned and interesting article entitled, "Church, State and Education," which shows what the law has been and is concerning religion in the schools of the various parts of the United States. While his summary of the history of this subject is of value, what he misses altogether is that atheism may be taught our children, but not the word "God," not the Bible, not the Psalms, not the Prophets, not the Apostles. Karl Marx is legal in the schools, but not Isaiah or St. Mark. They suffer from Biblical affliction.

For many, this is a very serious question. They say that religion has no place in the schools. But has anti-religion a place? The real difficulty is that the Catholics object to the St. James Version of the Bible; the Protestants object to the Douai Version; and the Jews object to both. But does anyone object to a materialistic, biologic interpretation of man's place in society; does anyone complain that his child is being bombarded with an amoral position that man is a product of his environment and that morals are a matter of superstition and social pressures?

In a world, in the talk of Church and State has nothing to do with the fundamental question, which is, what is being done to offset and counteract their corruption by teachers who are atheists and who propagandize an atheistic conception of morals in the public schools?

Dr. Schachner's article does not deal with this at all. Unfortunately, most of those who discuss this question are too concerned with money for bus rides and too little with the need for God.

The real danger is not that the public schools will become sectarian but that fastidious parents will not send their children to public school. An increasingly large number do send their children to private and parochial schools. The independent (private) schools are not only for the rich and fashionable but for children whose parents object to a materialistic, amoral education. They want their children to learn not only about the amoeba but also about the Beatitudes. It is a question of moral standards.

Unfortunately, while the attack is being made on religion—every kind of religion—with increasing force, the children of God are divided into quarreling, bickering sects who hate each other, denounce each other, discriminate against each other. They have forgotten that Christ taught:

"This is my commandment: that ye love one another, as I have loved you. Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

And also, He said:

"Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy. But I say unto you, Love your enemies; bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you."

But few of those Christians some of them call themselves, pay heed to this counsel. They fret and fume over school lunches and who shall get them out of the tax collector's money, but they do not worry about the poison that is daily being poured into the minds of their own children, poisons that have already produced an unmeasurable debasement of man in Europe and projects here a society that knows no better guide than the rule of reason and necessity, the passion for self-satisfaction and indulgence.

Isaiah cried out:

"Woe to the multitude of many people, Which make a noise like the noise of the seas; And to the rushing of nations, That makes a rushing like the rushing of mighty waters!"

This is not a problem for lawyers and doctors of philosophy. It is the obligation of every parent to protect his own child, to guard it, to nurture its spirit as well as its body, to make it as strong morally as physically. That obligation can be passed on to no one—surely not to the State. To the State, the child, as the person, is a statistical entity to be counted; to the parent, the child is the fulfillment of man's destiny as a moral being.

That Body of Yours

THE ALL-ROUND AND VEGETARIAN DIETS

Two unusually strong young men worked out in the same gymnasium. One ate meat three times a day, and the other considered himself a strict vegetarian because he ate no meat. The vegetarian admitted on questioning that he ate one or more eggs every day. As eggs are really animal food, he was not a strict vegetarian.

In the days when meat is not plentiful, food research workers are investigating more and more the food value of vegetables, as the view is widely held that a vegetarian diet promotes health and increases the life span.

In the "Journal of Nutrition," Philadelphia, Drs. A. J. Carlson and F. Hoelzel report their experience in which they fed some rats on an all-round diet containing meat and all the other food stuffs, and other rats a vegetarian diet during two long periods and two short periods. Two of 9 male Wistar rats attained weights of 870 and 890 grams, respectively, on the all-round diet including about 35 per cent protein (chiefly meat protein) and 28 per cent fat. Rats fed on purely vegetarian diets were stunted in growth. Rats fed on the all-round (omnivorous) diet lived much longer than rats fed a vegetarian diet. "The life span was uniformly prolonged by the intermittent fasting of rats fed an omnivorous diet than in rats fed a vegetarian diet."

I have spoken before of the two African tribes living side by side, one of which ate large quantities of meat and the other was vegetarian. Members of the tribe eating meat and the blood of animals were stronger, and lived longer than the tribe eating vegetables.

I have mentioned the experiment of Steffanson, the Arctic explorer, who lived on pemmican only in New York City for more than a year. Pemmican is lean meat, every trace of fat being removed. Pemmican can keep for 10 to 20 years in any climate, and Steffanson suggested pemmican as the K, or iron ration, for the armed forces.

We can get sufficient protein from vegetable foods but an enormous amount has to be eaten. Lean meat, however, not only gives energy and restores worn cells of the body, but it also has the effect of making the other foods give their full value of energy to the body.

She will have one thing in her favor. In any galaxy of nominees' photographs her face will shine like a star. Politicians as a rule seem to succeed in spite of their looks. Here's one that may prove an exception, and get on partly because of them.

Picking the Winnah

By FRANK TRIPP

This week ye chronicler will be making a speech to newspapermen. There's nothing unusual or exciting about that except the political significance of it; in spite of the fact that I never made a political speech in my life.

The speech is going to be about television—of which I know nothing. Thus will be able to talk convincingly about it. Maybe the political significance is all in my own mind; maybe not.

The affair is going to be in Albany, where I am Dewey works. You've heard of Tom. He's going to make a speech, too; which probably will be a political speech; either, but he can't say he never made one.

The political angle comes in a silly way. To my slightly superstitious and admittedly feeble mind it could have a bearing on the national Republican ticket this Fall.

What few dollars I've won on horse races has always been on hunches and peculiar reasons for picking what turned out to be a winner, through no fault of mine—and certainly through no knowledge of horses.

I'm taking a long time getting around to my hunch, but you see if I get my pay I have to stretch these yarns out to reasonable length. The length is usually the only reasonable thing about 'em.

Well, here's the dope; and if you place money on it and lose, don't blame me or ask for a refund because I'll be losing along with you.

For the last 12 years there's been a peculiar happenstance between newspapermen's conventions, the men who speak at them and the Republican candidates the succeeding Fall.

There was the time that Frank Knox and I talked to newspapermen in New York and Frank turned up candidate for Vice President.

There was the time that John Bricker and I talked to newspapermen in Columbus and John turned up candidate for Vice President.

There was the time in April 1940 when I introduced Wendell Willkie at the national newspaper meeting at the Waldorf and you know what happened to him that Summer in Philadelphia.

There was the time in 1944 that Tom Dewey and I talked to the same meeting again at the Waldorf and Tom got nominated that time.

So seeing as how Tom and I are going to talk to the newspaper bunch this week in Albany I'm sap enough to believe that maybe the thing can happen again, and again and again.

If you're the betting sort, chances are you'll put your money on crazier hunches than these odd coincidences. Because, you see, on none of the four occasions did any of the four men make a political speech nor did I. None of the four got on a political, but all were newspaper meetings and all took place in national election years.

I know what you're thinking—and it's a nasty thought. It's that none of the four birds got elected and that if you were Tom Dewey you wouldn't get on a rostrum with me for love or money.

Probably there's something to that, but by the time Tom reads this it'll be too late for him to back out. So the only thing he can do will be to plan some sort of Mayday.

Maybe he can get on a speaking program with Jim Farley. Jim can get everybody elected except himself.

Anyway, though none of the guys I've jinxed got elected, still none of 'em ever were out of work.

over this thoroughfare daily, endangering their lives. This snow was left until it melted in the spring, or during any thaw we might have had, causing the road to be covered with water which froze at night. These slippery pavements caused many cars to skid and a number of the trailer trucks which pass over to jack-knife and cause many traffic tie-ups and accidents.

I think I can speak for the many motorists who travel Route 28 over the viaduct, and say "Thanks" to Mayor Newkirk.

The new administration has been in office only since the first of the year, but already we can see evidence of his work, in particular on the Washington avenue viaduct. This is the first year since I can remember that the hazardous snow has been removed from that roadway. Even the lightest snowfall has been removed, not only scraped clean, but removed completely. Previously the snow has been piled so high, so far out into the road that a driver never knew whether he could pass a car coming in the other direction or not. Many bus-loads of school children passed

Dislikes Gold That Made Great-Grandfather Famous

Today 100th Anniversary of Discovery That Started Rush to California

Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 24 (AP)—One hundred years ago today gold was discovered in California on the extensive lands of John Augustus Sutter, adventurer, pioneer businessman and colonizer. The event, according to some historians, changed the course of civilization and American history. But today his great grandson, Howard Joseph Sutter Hull, 70, will talk about almost anything but gold.

"Gold, gold, gold—that's all I've heard all my life," says Hull. "I don't want to hear anything more about it."

Tall, erect and with a twinkle in his steel gray eyes, Hull bears some resemblance to a painting of his enterprising forbearer. Formerly an importer, he is now retired. His story contains many unrecorded tales. But let's start at the beginning.

When gold was discovered in digging a mill race for Sutter's prosperous settlement, Sutter's son, John, Jr., was serving with the diplomatic service in Mexico. Unable to find educational opportunities for his children, John Jr. decided to send his son and daughter to their grandfather.

By the time the children arrived in California misfortune already had overtaken the colonizer. He had tried to keep the gold strike a secret, but his property was soon overrun with gold seekers. Even worse, the government claimed that he had no right to the land on which the gold was found and the Supreme Court ruled invalid the title to 98,000 acres of his holdings. The farm house where he lived was leveled by Sutter, a Swiss, settled in California in 1838 and became a citizen of Mexico when he received a grant of 40,000 acres on the Sacramento river on condition he would build a strong outpost there for the Mexican government.

Wealthy until his title was held invalid, he soon became bankrupt. However, he had paid $30,000 in taxes to the new state of California and the state undertook to repay this in yearly installments.

With that money, Sutter, his wife and grandchildren headed eastward for newly Lilliz, Lancaster county, Pa. where the Linden Hall Seminary for Girls and the Beck School for Boys were located. The family settled down in Lilliz and there the granddaughter, Ann, entered school. Later she married Harry C. Hull and perpetuated the family in Lancaster county.

Her son describes how she once outwitted Congress. After Sutter's death Congress, which annually had rejected his claims for reimbursement for his lost lands, decided it should do something to pay tribute to the memory of the pioneer and voted to place a solid marble fence, seven feet high, around his grave in Lilliz.

But the idea of a seven-foot fence around the grave didn't appeal to Mrs. Hull. When the time came to erect it, Mrs. Hull ordered workmen to dig a trench six feet deep around her grandfather's resting place. That complete, she ordered them to start building the fence at the bottom of the excavation. So today the congressional fence around Sutter's grave is six feet underground and one foot above the surface, whatever Congress had intended.

Through the years many attempts have been made to have Congress pay to his heirs the money which many believe was rightfully owed to the colorful old pioneer. That's the talk Hull has heard for over a half century and that's why he's tired of hearing talk about California's gold.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

BY HAL BOYLE

New York, (AP)—In a hotel room off Times Square a small man wearing dark glasses sat talking of a dead man of mystery, one of the fabulous adventurers of modern times.

"He was the first white man since Marco Polo to enjoy the confidence of China's rulers," said Earl Albert Seile, an old China hand who is slowly recovering from a stroke of blindness caused by a Japanese bullet in Shanghai.

The man he spoke of was William Henry Donald—the famous "Donald of China"—an Australian who for four decades was in power in the uncompleted task of building a republican government in the vast land where live more than a fifth of the world's people.

He was a big, strange, quietly blunt man who came to China as a newspaperman and conceived early his lifelong passion to see the sprawling country become a modern democratic state.

Always Traveled Dry
"Donald got his first newspaper job in Hong Kong because he was a teetotaler," said Seile. "That was what the editor of the paper that hired him was looking for. He never took a drop of liquor in his life, and he had two favorite sayings: 'he travels fastest who travels alone, and he travels fastest who travels dry.'"

The young reporter traveled far—far enough to become a legendary figure in the land of the Lotus. He began as an adviser to a victor in the corrupt Manchurian regime, switched to the revolutionary banner of Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, the idealistic "Father of Modern China," directed artillery fire that battered in the gates of Nanking, and became the adviser of Chiang Kai-Shek and Madame Chiang.

Japs Hated Him
The Japanese hated him and called him "the evil spirit of China." Seile believes that except for Donald, Japan could have sabotaged the Chinese revolution in 1911 and seized the country in 1915. He sees Donald as the unifying force that enabled China to enter the first World War and to hunker off the Japanese in the second one.

"Donald alone is responsible for the world-wide sympathy that came to China and the Chiangs in the fight against Japan," he said. "His success—and history alone will show the full extent of his influence—was due to the fact he was the one man in China all factions could count on for complete honesty." Seile continued.

"He also refused to learn a word of the Chinese language or even to eat Chinese food. He didn't like the food and he decided early that if he never learned the language the Chinese around him in conferences could talk among themselves better and without embarrassment."

Never Argued
"His sole diplomatic principle was to give advice but never argue."

In 1940 Donald fell out with the Chiangs. Seile says it was because of a fiscal corruption in Kuomintang high circles and the refusal of Chiang at that time to deliver speeches Donald had written Hitler.

The next year the Chiangs appealed to him to return. Impatient at the delay in getting an air priority sailing on freighter, which put in at Manila after Pearl Harbor was bombed.

Was Protected
Donald was interned with the fall of the Philippines, and although the Japanese police came to the camp searching for him—he would have been a major prize—the commandant managed to shelter him.

Released at war's end, the Australian was taken to a Honolulu hospital where he was found to be dying of lung cancer. For 25 years he had refused huge sums to write his memoirs. But lying on his hospital bed he decided to tell his story, and dictated it to a stenographer brought by Seile, who has made it into a book to be published next month.

Knowing Donald's wish to die in his adopted land although the sick man refused to appeal to the Chiangs, Seile sent word to them. They arranged a special flight and Donald was flown to Shanghai, where he died in November, 1946.

"What did Donald look like?" I asked curiously.

"I never saw him," he answered quietly.

At the time of his Honolulu interviews with this little-known man who looms so large in the secret history of China Seile himself was totally blind.

Maroons Rout Saugerties, 73-40, for 25th Straight Victory

In The Pocket

with CHARLIE TIANO

Bagatelles:

Comparatively speaking the Poughkeepsie Bowling Association is giving Kingston, Newburgh and Middletown a bad licking in entries for the respective city championships. . . . The Bridge City association recently offered the city's bowlers the proposition of handicap or no handicap for the annual championships. . . . The bowlers voted against handicap and will compete in four classes, A, B, C, and D. We can't go along with that kind of reasoning but we can't laugh off the Poughkeepsie entry list. . . . William "Chief" Mueller, tournament chairman, predicts entries will eclipse last year's record total of 208 teams, 243 doubles and 298 singles. . . . Kingston will not even remotely approach those figures, conclusive evidence that local kegglers are still far from tournament conscious. . . . This in spite of the fact that the finest bowling conditions in the region are at their disposal right here in Kingston. . . . If you don't think so, just watch those score-famished out-of-town squads feast on local drives in the Hudson Valley League.

3469 Score Tops National Slate:

The WADC quintet of Akron, Ohio, leads the national high score parade with 3469 according to the most recent A.B.C. compilations. The Akronites also own the highest single date, 1230. . . . Don Mink of Green Bay, Wis., tops the individuals with 836.

Changes Planned in A.B.C. Constitution:

- More than 70 amendments to the constitution and rules of the American Bowling Congress will be considered by convention delegates in Detroit on April 18. Here are some of the more pertinent changes proposed:
- Approval of a single team foul-detector.
- Eliminate present rule No. 24 (alley-man rule).
- Allow bowlers to compete in more than one city tournament under certain restrictions.
- New method of awarding reservations to next ABC tournament. Those made in person at the tournament take precedence over mail reservations—blanket reservations to be more strictly regulated.
- Special premium rule for city associations having 1,000 teams or more.
- 6.1% increase in sanction fees for summer leagues.
- Increase president's travel allowance from $1,000 to $1,500.
- Place secretary on an expense account at the annual tournament instead of giving him a specific amount for expenses.
- Permit national fraternal and benevolent groups to charge a membership fee under specified limitations.
- Allow unlimited pins to be made of more than three pieces of wood.
- Move legal limits of pins two ounces each way; from 3 pounds down to 2 pounds 14 ounces and from 3 pounds 8 ounces up to 3 pounds 10 ounces.
- Only men hired for exhibitions at a fee to be considered alley-men.
- Removal of race clause in membership definition.
- ABC to take over all phases of amateur tournament.
- Standardize distance of saucer or painted line on approach to 13 feet from foul line.
- Limiting protest in 48 hours after basis of protest occurred.
- Sanctioning of two-man and individual sweepstakes.
- Permit coatings of plastic finish to any thickness on pins.

MULLIGAN MIKE SAYS: The A.B.C. also will permit bowling.

Ulsters at Home Again Sunday

The Hotel Ulsters, currently riding in second place, only one full length back of the Newburgh Shapiro Sporting Kegglers, will return to their famous drives on alleys 7 and 8 at the Central Recs Sunday afternoon when they engage the Poughkeepsie Fogg-Nash trundlers.

Last week, in routing the Ellenville Vaysides, the Ulsters established two new Hudson Valley League records with an 1140 single and 3195 team triple.

The only other local club to see home action is Hynes Shoes who will battle the Saugerties Reds on Alleys 15 and 16. Kingston Van Kleef's travel to Walden for the match against Art's and Eddies.

Michigan Kegglers Are Out in Front

Chicago, Jan. 24 (AP)—The $64,000 Petersen Bowling Classic, richest tournament in history, enters 16 consecutive days of firing today with Michigan kegglers in the limelight.

After two successive weeks of pin-topping, seven of the leading ten scorers—chasing a $5,000 first prize—were from Michigan. Zig Starr, 29-year-old Detroit shipping clerk, was on top with an eight-game score of 1594 bowled on January 10 when the marathon opened.

Don Beeler of Pontiac, N. Y., runner-up in the Petersen spring classic at Buffalo last year, broke up a clean sweep of the first four positions by Detroit pin-spillers with a 1,581 last Sunday to take over the second spot. Zeke Tody of Detroit was in third place with a 1,580 and Tom Dorazio, another Detroit, was fourth with 1,571.

Today, the first group of 2,048 bowlers of an original field of 2,560 began firing and will complete their bids for the cash awards before the meet ends Feb. 8.

Predicts New Time For Flying Parson

Boston, Jan. 24 (AP)—The indoor track season has barely started and Miller Gil Dadds has been in training only three weeks but veteran Coach Jack Ryder predicts the Boston A.A.'s famed "Flying Parson" will erase his own indoor 4:06.4 record when he makes his first 1948 competitive start in the O'Reilly Memorial mile tonight at the Boston Garden.

Dadds, who has yet to break 4:09 so early, will take off in the feature event of the annual Knights of Columbus track and field games against six rivals, three of whom were also rivals in last night's Philadelphia meet.

Among the other mile starters are Bill Hulse, the last American to defeat Dadds, five years and 28 races ago, Tommy Quinn, also of the New York A.C., Larry Ellis of New York U. Track Fours, the Illinois A.C., Browning Ross of Villanova, and Bill Mack of Michigan State.

Beau Jack Takes Win Over Bratton

Chicago, Jan. 24 (AP)—Johnny "Honeyboy" Bratton had his jaw taped up today with a possible fracture after losing on a technical knockout to Beau Jack, former world's lightweight champion, last night.

Beau Jack won on a T.K.O. in the eighth round of a savagely fought battle for 10 rounds in Chicago Stadium after the 20-year-old Chicago boxer appealed to Referee Johnny Behr to stop the bout because of a terrific blow to his jaw.

The former Augusta, Ga., shoe shine boy weighed 139½ to Bratton's 139.

Bratton outscored his opponent with his flashy left and right crosses in the first seven rounds. Beau Jack's swings were frequently wild and missed.

Lujack Expected To Sign With Bears For $18,000 Salary

Chicago, Jan. 24 (AP)—In a pent house atop a fashionable loop hotel, Johnny Lujack, voted the "athlete of the year" today was expected formally to sign as a pro football player with the Chicago Bears of the National League.

The inkling of the pact comes as no surprise to anyone. Ever since Lujack replaced Angelo Bertelli as the Notre Dame T-master, he has been pointing for a professional career with the Bears.

The club's ace passer, Sid Luckman, became a personal friend of Lujack's while teaching the intricacies of the T-formation during spring practices at Notre Dame. Naturally, George Halas, owner-coach of the Bears, received introductions also.

The contract is expected to call for either two years or four years duration at the modest sum of about $18,000 per annum, with a $5,000 "bonus" for affixing the signature.

Kiasmen Hit New Scoring High; Lowe Tops With 11

Coach G. Warren Kias dipped into his magic pockets Friday night just before the second half started and brought out a number of reserve varsity players who quickly caught onto the idea of things and then proceeded to complete the rout of Saugerties for Kingston High School's biggest scoring effort of the 1947-48 campaign by humbling the Northern Ulsters, 73 to 40.

The Maroon mentor allowed his regular varsity performers to do the trick during the initial two periods and they left the floor with a 39-16 bulge. For the remainder of the game Kias used his sub-arsity and they by no means let up in a scoring spree which had the fans yelling from the rafters.

Olympic Skiers Move to Grison, Bobbers Ride Fast

Referees Kaufman of Ellenville and Bobby Newhard of Highland Falls, the youngster who appeared with the Kingston Dodgers last summer, had their hands full last night calling 70 personal fouls—47 against a quickly rolled up 23 to 8 edge at the first period. With the regular varsity still in the Maroons jumped the margin up with 39-16 at halftime.

Kias sent in his reserves during the final two periods of play including Bob Brown, Holstein, Chambers, Dunham, McCarty, Ronnie Scheffel, Mort Gazlay, and they brought Kingston to a 60-25 bulge at the third quarter.

Whitaker and Sinnott were the big guns for Saugerties in a losing cause by collecting 10 points apiece.

George Holstein and Bud Scheffel collected 10 to give Kingston Jayvees a 44 to 35 win over Saugerties in the prelim last night. Kingston led at the half by 18 to 9.

Funeral services for Louis Mayone of Glasco were held Wednesday from the late home at 9:30 a. m., thence to St. Joseph's Church at 10 a. m., where a solemn high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of his soul by the Rev. Louis A. Strieler, a veteran who acted as the celebrant and the Rev. Austin V. Carey of Kingston as deacon and the Rev. Raymond Hyland of Saugerties as sub-deacon. Responses to the Mass were sung by Charles Riccardi and assisted at the organ by Mrs. Michael A. Callahan. There were many beautiful floral pieces and spiritual bouquets in the form of Mass cards that attested to the high esteem in which he was held. Tuesday evening Father Rivoli called at the home and led those assembled in the recitation of the rosary. The firing squad and the bugler were all members of the American Legion Post 72, Saugerties. Bearers were Anthony Cashara, Thomas Misasi, Thomas Clarante, Philip Conte, Angelo Ferraro and Thomas Green, all veterans of World Wars I and II. Burial took place in a family plot in St. Mary's cemetery. Burial was officiated by the Rev. Raymond Hyland pronounced the final absolution.

Drunken Soldier Runs Amuck in Big Army Tank

Lawton, Okla., Jan. 24 (AP)—An intoxicated Fort Sill soldier ran berserk in an army tank here shortly before midnight—leading frantic M.P.'s on a dizzy 12-mile chase through the heart of town before they trapped him with a road-block.

The one-man armored force crashed three cars on his stormy passage and started a near-panic in Lawton, a town of 20,000, where startled citizens jammed the police telephone board with queries and phony-play reports.

The provost marshal's office at the fort acknowledged the incident, but withheld the man's name and announced tersely, "an investigation is going on now."

Col. Andrew Pickard, night duty officer, added that a platoon of five Sherman medium tanks is stationed at the post—which is army's top artillery school.

Desk Sgt. Al Hennessee of the Lawton police said his first report came from an excited man who burst into the police station shouting "an army tank just smashed my car."

"I thought he'd flipped his lid," said Hennessee. "Then the phones started."

Hennessee followed the pursuit on his dispatcher's radio and gave this running account from conversation with M.P.'s and brother officers:

The soldier, a radio operator, drove the tank through a fog chase, but could do nothing to stop the huge machine as it thundered the five miles to Lawton. A Sherman weighs about 16 tons and is nearly 10 feet broad. Hennessee said military authorities told him the soldier had been drinking.

German Girl Stands To Lose $18,750,000

Berlin, Jan. 24 (AP)—Red-haired Ursula Bauer sat in her cold flat in North Berlin today and expressed the forlorn hope she might obtain a visa to enter the United States and stake her claim to a fortune which is in litigation in Philadelphia.

Miss Bauer, who is 23 and a secretary, yesterday had a day of glory as a "dollar princess" in Berlin newspapers, which reported her claim that she was heirless to a fortune worth $18,750,000 left by a great-aunt who died in the U. S.

The notice said that if Miss Bauer or her father failed to appear personally in Philadelphia by February 20, 1947, their claims would be considered passed.

F. A. Lane, U. S. Consul General here, said Miss Bauer's chances of getting a U. S. visa are slim, since certification from the government that her trip would be "in the national interest" would be required.

Rain-Maker Has Jug of Water to Be on Safe Side

Los Angeles, Jan. 24 (AP)—An Indian rain-maker who screamed at his gods to deposit a little moisture on drought-plagued Southern California made sure of results.

Chief Tuxhal of the Wasco tribe brought along from Portland's Chamber of Commerce a gallon jug of Oregon's finest rain-water to suffice, he said, in case his deities didn't hear his appeals.

If they didn't they were stone deaf.

Tuxhal hopped off a plane yesterday and, before cameramen could even get set, shouted "let's have some rain, hey boys?" then he let go horrendous yells in native dialect, meantime beating the daylight out of a tom-tom.

He explained he was addressing the Indian rain god, El Coyote, or "Spiel-Ey." "He fixum, huh?" said Tuxhal, American name Cliff Meacham, World War 2 marine and highway engineer. "In the past he has proven very efficacious in similar circumstances."

Meteorologist Leo Sergius, going along with the gag by posing in a raincoat, carrying an umbrella, checked his instruments, said laconically: "Forecast, continued dry."

Chief Tuxhal was sent here via Western Airlines by the Portland Chamber of Commerce, which said there had been plenty of rain, even some to spare, there.

He presented the jug of Oregon water to Los Angeles City Councilman Don A. Allen, also a bouquet of roses from Portland's Mayor R. Earl Riley.

Rooming House Fire Early Today In Poughkeepsie

A two-alarm fire swept through the upper stories of a rooming house at 498 Main street in Poughkeepsie early this morning, the fire department of that city reported. All occupants were uninjured, they said.

The fire was discovered at 1:44 a. m. today, and Chief Irving Merrick ordered a second alarm rung at 1:56, according to the department records. Five pumps, two trucks and one squad responding to the call were engaged in fighting the fire until about 6 a. m.

The building is a two and one-half story brick rooming house owned by the Satz Realty Company and occupied by about eight persons.

Investigation as to the cause of the blaze is continuing under Chief Merrick.

Firemen were hampered by intense cold, with the temperature reported at 10 degrees below zero. Damage was to the upper story, attic and roof, with some water damage in the lower stories, firemen said.
